In Memoriam

A landscape photograph featuring a single, dark, rounded tree on a green hill under a dramatic, cloudy sky with a bright sun or moon low on the horizon, creating a golden glow.

IT IS WITH GREAT SADNESS THAT WE MOURN THE PASSING OF KEVIN JENKINS...

- Kevin Jenkins was a 17-year employee who began his career in 1999 as a Photography Lab Technician. Kevin became a full-time faculty member at COC in 2002 and quickly earned a reputation for being an amazingly patient and inspiring teacher who took the time to listen to his students. He served for many years as department chair and program visionary, helping to build the Graphic and Multimedia Design Department with friend and fellow professor Mark Daybell.
- Kevin was a talented artist, photographer and designer. He was a self-described lifelong learner who remained active in the design industry, producing work for both commercial and artistic purposes.
- Kevin excelled at adapting his curriculum to reflect the always-evolving design industry, which served to give his students a competitive advantage in launching their careers.
- Kevin spent many extended sabbaticals in far-away places and considered travel a continuation of his education.
- Before joining COC, Kevin earned his Master's of Fine Arts in Creative Photography from the University of California, Irvine and a Bachelor's degree in Sculpture from California College of the Arts in San Francisco.
- Kevin will be deeply missed by his family, his colleagues and friends at College of the Canyons, as well as his students to whom he dedicated his energy and enthusiasm on a daily basis.
- A memorial will be held in early February for the COC community.
